STRAND	Energy
SUB-STARND	Energy sources and its transfer
CONTENT LEARNING OUTCOME	Demonstrate the concept of energy and explain its importance.

Lesson Notes

Effects of Heat Energy

Heat energy has an effect on things in different ways. Did you ever climb a ladder in the house and notice that the air is warmer near the ceiling? Perhaps you opened your refrigerator door and the cold air around your feet.

When water is boiling, steam and water vapor escapes from the kettle. Does it go up or down?

The air and the steam are both gases. Gases are made of particles. When gases are heated, the particles move very fast. As they vibrate, they also move further apart.

The gas expands. It takes up more space. The same number of gas particles in a larger space makes the gas lighter. As the gas gets lighter, it rises. As the gas cools, it contracts and gets heavier. The heavier gas comes down.
